KLSAM – An Integrated South American Market

Klüber Lubrication placed its Brazilian, Chilean and Argentine subsidiaries under one single administration as part of a regionalization process which began in December 1997. Since then, the company’s new name is Klüber Lubrication South America or KLSAM and it has placed special emphasis on exchanging experiences, teamworking and respecting the peculiarities of each market. Among the greatest challenges this process has offered are dealing with the cultural differences and the changes of perspective as well as the management of people.

KLSAM started observing the culture, the mentality and the needs of each client in each country at close range, adapting the proposal of values to each consumer while maintaining a global support system and alignment. Among the benefits arising from this regional performance are the proximity to clients all over the continent, the possibility of taking advantage of and administering stocks better and the cooperation among subsidiaries regarding procedures.
